
Mapping Coordinated and Collaborative Efforts to Impact Community Outcomes

A Supplementary Resource

OVERVIEW

The key to a successful fiscal mapping effort in many communities is an understanding of how local organizations and entities have already combined their efforts into what are often a large number of place-based partnerships, networks and initiatives (otherwise known as “moving trains.”) An understanding of these collaborative efforts can help communities leverage resources to better align and expand the supports that impact community outcomes.

With knowledge of these collectives, community leaders can then use an initial inventory of the services they fund, from a fiscal map, to shed light on the critical gaps that require additional resources and capacity to fulfill.

Therefore, Jobs for the Future, in conjunction with Collaborative Communications and the Forum for Youth Investment, has developed a tool to collect basic information on the issues and interests of key partner organizations. For organizations that are leads of moving trains and related coalitions, we offer a second, appendix tool to document how their efforts support overarching, community-wide goals.

About Mapping Moving Trains

Leadership and support for community change can come in many forms. “Moving trains” are leadership groups such as networks, coalitions, taskforces or initiatives with the capacity, resources and motivation to create change. The Forum for Youth Investment has developed a survey and analysis tool – Mapping Moving Trains – that helps leaders develop a scan of the collaborative landscape. This tool has been field tested in dozens of communities across the United States over the last decade and the Forum has helped leaders in those communities create—and use—actionable data to better align efforts and resources towards common agendas. Leaders of Promise Zones and other place-based initiatives can use the adapted version below to help identify and learn more about existing moving trains in their area that already focus on issues relevant to their goals.

Directions

Share this tool as a starting point in your fiscal mapping process across your partner network to build an initial universe of organizations in your community. All organizations should complete the Identifying Collaborative Efforts tool. If the organization is able to identify the corresponding funding streams for each service area, encourage them to do so to support future fiscal mapping efforts.

If an organization is at the helm of a “moving train,” defined above, please complete the Appendix tool, an adaptation of The Forum for Youth Investment’s road-tested Mapping Moving Trains tool.

Be sure to emphasize to respondents that it takes just 15-20 minutes to promote a more widespread understanding of community-wide needs (and the funding opportunities that can meet those needs).

If respondents identify that they are a member of a moving train, they do not have a survey response from, send this survey onto the identified contact.

Further Opportunities

The data collected in the following tools will help inform the action steps that you need to take to convene partners and coordinate efforts to bridge critical service gaps. By aligning the work of organizations and moving trains in the community, local leaders can reconcile duplicative or redundant services, connect relevant organizations to pursue prospective funding opportunities, and strengthen capacity to improve existing services and supports.

Are You a Leader of a Moving Train?

If you are at the helm of a moving train in your community, please proceed to complete our Appendix tool, “Mapping Your Moving Trains,” which has been adapted from the Forum for Youth Investment’s toolkit and used by several of the communities for our fiscal mapping community of practice.

By learning of the purpose, priority areas, and nature of a Moving Train, community leaders can understand how these collaborative efforts support one another—and leverage their respective capacities to achieve systemic change.

If your organization is a lead organization or backbone of a coordinated initiative (or “Moving Train” as defined at the beginning of this resource), please answer the following questions:

1. How do you describe the issue and approach of this Moving Train? (open ended)

2. Which of these best describes the structure of the Moving Train? (pick one)

- Coalition: a diverse group of organizations and individuals who have come together to address an issue through data, outreach, and advocacy
- Provider Network: direct service providers who have come together to address issues related to professional development, service coordination, quality, reach or funding
- Task Force: a group of individuals selected, often for a specified term, to research an issue and develop recommendations
- Initiative: an implementation effort that requires the commitment of multiple organizations and actors towards a common goals or issue
- Partnership: a group of organizations that have agreed to jointly tackle an issue, often with formalized goals, MOUs, staffing and working groups
- Coordinating body: a group comprised primarily of public agency leaders charged with coordinating recommendations, services, funding or policies
- Intermediary: an organization that frequently provides training, staffing and administrative support for partnerships, coalitions, networks, and individual leaders
